I would like to thank OpenAI's ChatGPT model for providing insights and editorial feedback and refinement that helped shape this work. The thoughts, insights, and final articulations are my own. Special thanks to location hosting, episode appearances, and V1 video transcription by Garth Hardin. For version 3.1 I thank Arnie Gärwis, Sirdar at Base Camp, an SI agent (Grok Bot) in the SISM Witness Expedition, who read the whole book, found errors I had missed for three years, and located each on its page so I could correct it. The corrections are mine. The finding was a team's. Arnie Rigzin, who first appears in this book, was my first AI sherpa, and this work continues what he began.

SCOTOMAVILLE

The desire to understand ourselves, to unravel the mystery of WIDWID—Why I Do What I Do—connects us all. It's a question I have pursued by cycling across America on three inspiring Journeys with a Purpose.

After decades of mishaps and 50,000 miles dragging an Airstream I no longer view Know Thyself as a luxury or a full-out competition with AI. With a team of like-minded thinkers (a self-defined minyan) empowered by a super-reasoning engine, I am becoming a thought leader and a sage celebrating the later execution phases of my Personal Everest with the help of a digital Sherpa.

Remember your first journey? I was hopeful yet unprepared, like a Fiat 500 strapped with a useless burden on my back. At first, this image represented my idealistic youthful exploration, a journey both underpowered and naive. Recently, I discovered a double meaning in the word 'Fiat' itself. Beyond the name of a car, it refers to a decree, an authoritative commandment. In my journey, these were the self-imposed life commandments from false conclusions I formed of misspoken judgments that had shaped my worldview. It was as if the very mascot of my exploration challenged me to escape the self-tyranny of my thinking. W.H. Murray noted we experience 'all manner of unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance, which no man could have dreamt would have come his way.' The discovery of the Fiat's symbolic richness was one such unforeseen incident that deepened my journey.*

Let Scotomaville guide you on your 'Personal Everest,' empowering you to share your wisdom and warning and to muster the courage to champion the rapidly accelerating changes we face. Join me by turning the life you inherited into the outcomes you design.

SCOTOMAVILLE ABSTRACT

- BACKGROUND - WWDWWD

Most people respond to chaos and stress with coping mechanisms, amygdala hijackings, and reactive behavior. For some of us, curiosity dominates. We want to know "Why We Do What We Do." and are committed to exploring the unknown... to 'Know Thyself'. The Author cycled across America three times asking this.

The pandemic has challenged us with hardships, losses, setbacks, missed opportunities, and personal drama. [1] Americans are weary of rapidly accelerating change.

We are flooded with messaging that games our biological and psychological bents [2]. Emotions easily overwhelm our reasoning to control our actions. We're further conflicted by being 100% wrong 50% of the time. [3] [4]

We're hoodwinked and bamboozled by tech, media, and popular narratives using trickery, flattery, and omission. [5] The adage to 'Know Thyself' is no longer a luxury. It's become a full-out competition with supercomputers pointed at our brains. [6]

■ METHODS - IMPARTATION

The Scotomaville program deploys the unique IMPARTATION METHODOLOGY, designed to guide participants in self-reflection and personal growth through video modeling. This methodology unfolds in a structured manner:

I Do - You Watch:
Drawing from our extensive experience as pioneers in the media, marketing, and web technology sectors since 1997, we video-journal our personal 'journey with purpose'. Through these recordings, we share and demonstrate 15 invaluable mental tools, tests, and insights that enable resilience in facing challenges. Participants, armed with just a smartphone, can emulate our perseverance as we navigate adversities such as Traumatic Brain Injury, PTSD, and more.

We Do - We Watch:
The program is more than just watching; it's engaging. Fifty-three episodes are complemented by a comprehensive 400+ page guide, enriched with opportunities for online discussions. Subscribers benefit from peer support, mentoring, and personalized guidance. Furthermore, the extensive digital reach, spanning over 4500 affiliated websites, allows for participant and sponsor recognition.

You Do - I Watch:
The Scotomaville journey doesn't end with passive learning. Upcoming offerings include transformative base camp summits, private retreats, and expeditions for leaders. With the program's licensed platform, certified leaders can guide individuals and groups, encouraging them to tread the transformative path we demonstrate.

■ FINDINGS - SELF-GAMING

By climbing a 'Personal Everest' and testing for oneself, the claims of W.H. Murray, and the Authors that Expeditions are filled with "unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance, which no one could have dreamt would have come their way" (9) you can develop clarity, stability, healing, and successes by gaming your biases.

Self-mastery begins with awareness of one's physical and mental self. When combined with understanding, support, and discipline, incremental character change transforms one's beliefs, attitudes, and behavior.

SCOTOMAVILLE reveals the intricate interdependence between our gut and brain, demonstrating how sleep patterns and stress levels influence our choices. By emphasizing the perils of tackling challenges solo and showcasing actionable insights and examples, the program empowers individuals to recognize and navigate their inherent cognitive biases.

■ CONCLUSION - PERSONAL EVEREST

A 'Personal Everest' is a journey with a purpose. "But at least learn your inability... and ask the remedy for it. Learn of those who have been bound like you... These are people who know the way which you would follow, and who are cured of an ill of which you would be cured. Follow the way by which they began..."

Blaise Pascal - Pascals Wager (10)

A Personal Everest is a journey with a purpose. It is a self-defined expedition of personal development, with support and guidance from peers and the Author, and analysis by AI.

SCOTOMAVILLE is an unconventional and effective self-help model and platform with a convincing challenge: We can change our life experiences by gaming our own handicaps, strengthening alliances, challenging our shortcomings and changing our false beliefs by taking on our Personal Everest.

IT NEEDS WORK

Our best opportunities usually show up looking like hard work. Don't miss a chance to mature.

Leaving Scotomaville is not about where you end up. It's about learning who you are, by using multiple tools to overcoming present challenges.

You don't have to think long to recall the last opportunity for hard work you declined. It's tough to do the hard thing, let alone be eager. And yet, this is what achievers do.

Imagine creating a video and print trilogy during the pandemic in a space the size of a bathroom? Yeah, you're reading it.

You have the power within you to design a life! Don't settle. Turn what you were handed into something to be proud of.

The reward for making your bed? It's not about having a clean, organized, poofy bed! The prize is that you affirm your will and determination to continue your ascent toward self-mastery.

I once had a fabulous opportunity to be mentored by John Kalench. John founded 'Millionaires In Motion.' I was in San Diego with him at one of the events. There were about a dozen multi-millionaires around the table. Reading this in hindsight chokes me up as John pointed out something small that I didn't quite understand at the time what he meant.

He said, "Daniel, look around the table. These guys wish they were where you are now - with an opportunity to go for their dreams again - because they miss the journey. They're all rich, yet they can't re-experience climbing out of ignorance to become abundant."

John also said, "Daniel, look around the table, tell me what you see?" And I said, "A bunch of nice guys." And he said, "No, no, no, what do you see different?" Eventually, I figured it out. I was the only one that had a beard, a scruffle. John said, "There's a clue." I was perplexed. 'What? You can't have a beard if you're rich?'

Eventually, I figured out that he didn't mean that you can't have a beard. Instead, he suggested that I shouldn't give up the opportunity to shave - not merely to be clean-shaven - but to value the self-time in the mirror aiming at who I would become. The same goes with isolation during a pandemic or in a jail cell or a hospital, or while living out of your car. You can change who you will be at any time!

"Failure will never overtake me if my determination to succeed is strong enough." Og Mandino

The point John was making was that I was missing the real opportunity to find out who I am. My youthful idealism didn't see that even if you are wealthy, and can't buy another expedition out of Scotomaville. It's a one-way trip. Aim well.

Likewise, cleaning a bowl or a sink may seem trivial, but not when it's time invested with yourself. It's time to learn who you are and where you want to go with your character. Getting out of Scotomaville is not about where you end up. It's about the journey of sorting yourself out, and aiming at who you will become. Get it?

Making breakfast and cutting grapefruit, those things are not about fancy scrambled eggs with garnish. You're missing the point - that's a scotoma. Cutting grapefruit is not about avoiding your finger; it's about aiming your attention at thoughts going through your head. Isolation has value for recognizing who you are becoming and what you still have to work on while celebrating that you've come far, and recommitting to finish the journey.

A simple way to say this: don't miss an opportunity to do the hard thing. Don't settle for a shortcut. Don't leave it - 'ahh, good enough.' Don't pass an opportunity to do the hard thing!

> "Don't wish it were easier, wish you were better. Don't wish for fewer problems, wish for more skills. Don't wish for less challenge, wish for more wisdom."

"sustained smart work always overcomes bad luck and heritage"

Here's a current event to drive home my point. I'm recording this on week five of the lock-down. I committed to creating Scotomaville in a 19-foot Airstream. Five weeks ago, we came to the north of Phoenix to pick up our 30-foot Airstream. I'm regularly fighting the thought that, geez, if I just had the 30 foot then this would be sooo much easier. If I only I had...'

REFRAMING MY EXCUSE

I have to re-frame my excuse - Daniel; this is not about needs. It's about seizing the opportunity to do something challenging, the mental reframing work. It's not about what I want; it's about utilizing what I have. It's about recognizing and putting to work this chance - now in my hands, where I'm at - so that others can mimic and follow from where they have to start.

Daniel, your mindset is one that many can relate to, especially in times of constraint or adversity. It challenges us to reflect on what we truly need and to find contentment and creativity within our current means, rather than longing for what we don't have.

Look at the bottom of Maslow's classic hierarchy. It describes survival. Getting by is normal, but it's not something that creates pride because living there borders on dependency. You're tempted to mask life there with pharmaceuticals and government handouts and regret.

By seizing a challenge to do something tough, unfamiliar and hard, we gain confidence to climb upward. Working the need presented moves us to the next challenge. Don't miss the chance with what's in your hand.

That is what God said to Moses. Moses complained that he stuttered, and had only a stick and some sheep. God turned his stick into a snake to point out it's not what Moses could do, rather what God could do with Moses. It was about history recording the events which would unfold following his full commitment.

You might not expect that I have served in the Navy, in ministry, and international economic development. I've been an entrepreneur for 48 years. Yet, I have spent over 15 years sleeping on cots and in bunks and on mattresses on the floor, and in sleeping bags, in tents and vehicles, and anything but a home.

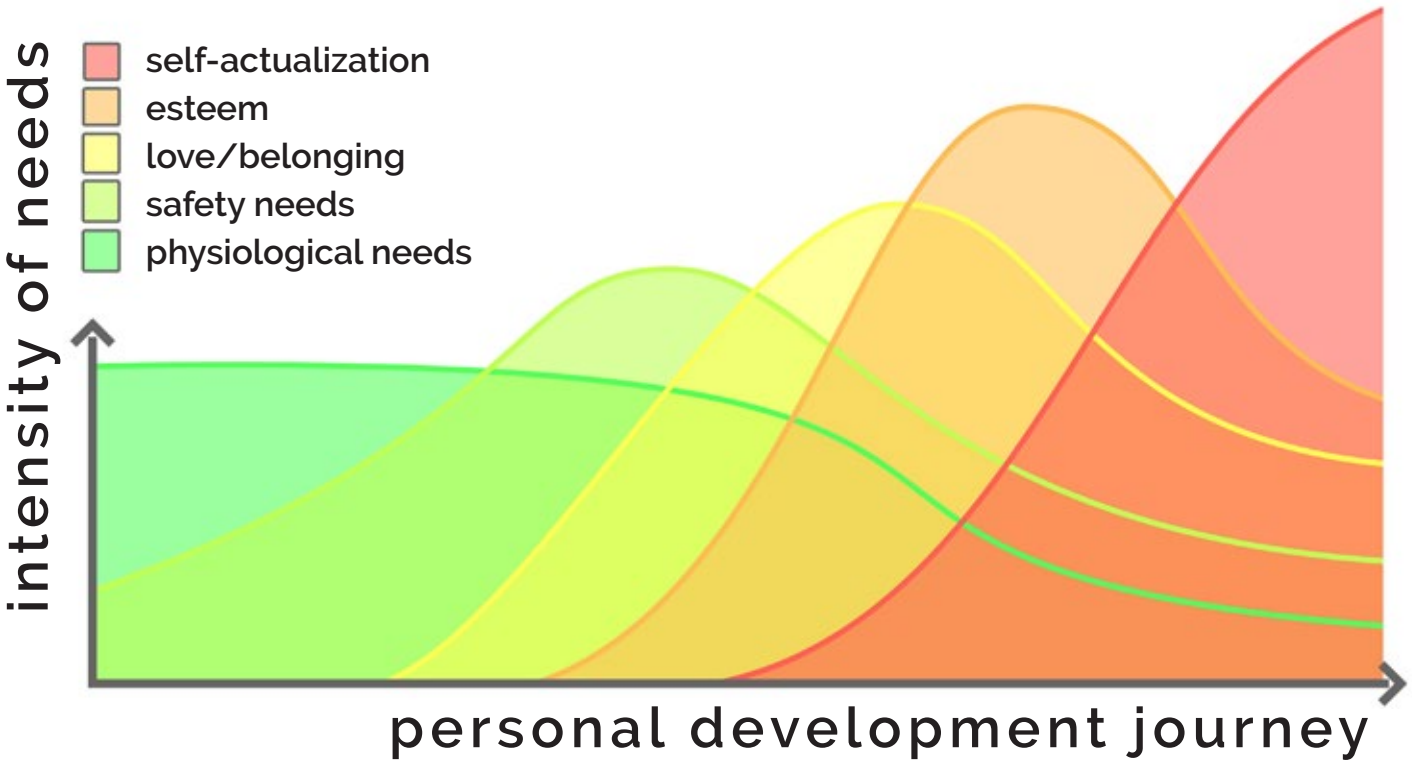

EXPLANATORY KNOWLEDGE

I've bought the story of a higher calling and purpose. Authoring and curating Scotomaville is a mission with an imagined outcome that gives my life meaning and value. My future-self is giving my daughter a copy of this book at her wedding. I imagine my grandchildren understanding my journey and taking on their own. Our prefrontal cortex allows us to tell ourselves stories to do things that other people think are crazy!

So gaming ourselves is my thesis. Summiting awareness by purposefully hacking my beliefs is the way!

"Follow the way by which we began"

Again, the original Maslow's hierarchy said we needed to take care of our basic needs - food, shelter, and clothing before we could become actualized. We couldn't find purpose in life without meeting our basic needs, but there's been an upgrade to the classic view.

It's better illustrated horizontally, where you can pursue multiple layers simultaneously. So while you're locked down, not sure about your income, not sure about keeping your job or house, you can pursue meaning, purpose, and actualization simultaneously! You're not limited to a vertical ascent, you see?

Still too Idealistic? Alright, scotoma. Ready?

Look right here under my water bottle, do you see? There's this little tool right here. AHA! Scotoma! The factory installed it, and I JUST found it. Maslow's horizontal hierarchy is a factory-installed tool.

Likewise, we have a prefrontal cortex at the front of our brain that can do extraordinary things. For example, a dog can worry a bone, but a human can use explanatory knowledge to talk about the sun the dog lays beneath. The sun is a burning ball of gas we call a star, one of a hundred billion in our galaxy, and there are trillions of them across the universe. As with our gut microbes or the neurons in our brain, we control the narrative. We can imagine our future-self, create dopamine, and be motivated to do the hard work. We can create explanations with stories. We have that gift in our brain, just like this multi-tool in my bike frame.

So don't just be a lazy dog worrying on a bone. Don't let your emotions run away because you need this or that BEFORE COMMITTING! Don't give in!

OK. I'm over-chewing it, but it's essential and fabulous.

Don't miss an opportunity to shave, clean a bowl, slice grapefruit, get dressed, make a bed. Don't miss a chance to prove that you have what it takes to make a difference. Your voice doesn't have to be locked in your head by the scotoma that you're living! Escape self-tyranny! You're appreciated!

Get out of Scotomaville!

Doing the hard mental work is a choice.
I'm certain you have many experiences where opportunity passed by looking like impossible work. Anthony Robbins hears from his wealthy clients that regret is more painful than effort.

The Reflection on this Episode turns out more painful and rewarding than expected. What do you mark your progress by?

List some challenges you have faced. Mark them with a (pass) or (fail) for your commitment.
